

Apples ripen slowly in the cool orchard behind the old farmhouse, and the family gathers them by hand every autumn before the first frost.

Bridges over the river were rebuilt after the flood, with stronger piers of stone and a wider deck for the heavy trucks that cross daily.

Candles burned in every window of the small village during the long winter evenings, when the roads were closed by snow for many weeks.

Dolphins followed the fishing boats out of the harbour each morning, leaping through the bright waves while the crews prepared their nets.
